Serving Bethel and neighboring communities in the foothills of western Maine

Guides to the past

Decades of firsthand experience were at the service of Sudbury Canada Days visitors this weekend, as (from left) Tom Wheeler, Richard Carter and Avery Angevine stood ready to instruct them on the history and uses of the many old tools and other work implements in the collection of the Bethel Historical Society. This year's festivities started a bit slowly, but overall participation was "steady" according to society Executive Director Stan Howe. Many new faces were seen as the day progressed, Howe said, and so many folks turned out for Saturday's log drivers' bean supper that the eatin's ran dangerously low. (Photo by Michael Daniels)

Bethel fire chief questions safety of SAD44's new offices in EBS

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The former Ethel Bisbee School has some new tenants, and Bethel Fire Chief Jim Young is again raising some long-standing concerns about the safety of the building.

Three top SAD44 administrators and three members of their staffs moved into part of the building late last week.

District Superintendent David Murphy, Business Manager Bruce Powell and Curriculum Developer Lee Graham each moved into his or her own office in former classrooms. Their staff occupy two other office spaces.

The space they left in the Telstar complex is now slated to be used for the district's new alternative middle-school program.

The new space in EBS has undergone some, generally superficial, renovations, according Powell.

But on July 27 —in a letter that Powell said Monday the district knew nothing of— Bethel Fire Chief Jim Young wrote the town code enforcement officer and planning assistant to express the Fire Department's concerns about the condition of the building.

He recommended that plans for any renovations be submitted to the state Fire Marshal's Office for review.

The town is not reviewing the project. The building has been used for more than a decade as space for the Dis-

Voices of White Mountains explorers, settlers, tavern keepers and others heard again in new book

By ALISON ALOISIO

People who love the White Mountains can now read about the human drama and history that goes with them.

"The White Mountains —Alps of New England," by Randy Bennett, has recently been published as part of Arcadia Publishing's "Making of America" series.

Bennett is assistant director and curator of collections at the Bethel Historical Society. He said it has been decades since a chronologically arranged history of the entire White Mountain region —including northern New Hampshire and parts of western Maine —has been written. Bennett hopes his book will fill that void.

He blends more than 100 photographs into his description of geography, geology, native American history, European exploration and settlement, logging, railroads and tourism.

It is quite different from a 1994 book he wrote for Arcadia's Old Photo Series on the White Mountains, he said.

That book, which is still selling well, was primarily made up of photos with captions.

Almost all the photographs in the new publication are appearing for the first time, but the emphasis this time around is on textual content.

To help convey the flavor of the turn-of-the century tourism era, Bennett also draws on quotations from old guide and travel books.

Among the book's topics: the only newspaper published on the summit of a major American mountaintop (Mt. Washington's "Among the Clouds"); the first women to climb Mt. Washington; the growth of the region's grand hotels, and the coming of the railroad and automobile.

The book also places today's debate on forest use in an interesting context, through description of the late 1700s perspective:

Building a house, championing a cause, while rebuilding a life

By ALISON ALOISIO

Patrick Carleton Harris is building a house on West Summit Road in Bryant Pond. He hopes to be in it this fall.

But between now and then, Harris has another project. He's going to drive his wheelchair from Fort Kent to Portsmouth, N.H. — a distance of 411 miles. He plans to do it in eight to 10 days.

Harris, a 46-year-old quadriplegic, was paralyzed in a car crash in Palmyra in November 2001. The Mt. Desert Island native was driving back from there to Bryant Pond, where he had started construction on his house, when the accident happened.

Now, like others who have suffered cell damage and disability, Harris is placing any hope to regain use of his limbs in stem cell research.

His wheelchair trek, he hopes, will move Maine and its people to permit stem cell research in the state. He also wants to have an impact on the nationwide debate on the issue.

A moral dilemma

Human embryos left over from in-vitro fertilization hold great promise, many scientists believe, to provide the building blocks to grow new cells that can replace those damaged by everything from spinal cord injuries to Alzheimer's Disease.

The cells are capable of turning into any other type of cell, providing the flexibility for the regeneration of tissue.

But there's a catch. For Large N. Country employer shuts its doors

Associated Press

One of the North Country's largest employers, the bankrupt Tillotson Health Care glove factory, has been shut down for more than a week, leaving as many as 130 people out of work.

The company filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in May 2002 but has managed to continue operations until recently. Recently a judge approved a Chapter 7 bankruptcy, which usually leads to a liquidation of assets.

The company was founded in 1931 by Neil Tillotson, who died last year at age 102. Tillotson also owned the Balsam's grand hotel in Dixville Notch. The factory, which

A NATIONAL MODEL OF CONSERVATION AND RECREATION

At an award ceremony Tuesday, Lake Umbagog National Wildlife Refuge received a "21st Century American Heritage Refuge" award by Americans for Our Heritage and Recreation (AHR). AHR is a diverse national organization representing conservationists, recreation and sporting goods industries, park and recreation specialists, wildlife enthusiasts, advocates for urban and wilderness areas, preservationists of cultural and historic sites, land trust advocates, the youth sports community, and civic groups. Of the more than 39,000 recreation areas nationwide assisted by the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF), Lake Umbagog National Wildlife Refuge was selected because it serves as a national model of conservation and recreation. The day's events also honored the centennial of the nation's wildlife refuge system. As part of the ceremonies, a time capsule containing various historical artifacts related to the refuge was buried. The capsule is to be opened in 2103. Here (from left) U.S. Sen. Judd Gregg (R-NH), Refuge Assistant Manager Ian Drew, and manager Paul Casey commit the capsule to the ground. Drew is a Bethel resident, and his children Kim, Lily and John helped with the day's events. (USFWS photo)

RESCUING BETHEL RESCUE

To the Editor:

We have a problem. We've had it since our last election and we'll continue to have it until we fix it. We let our Bethel Rescue down. Guess what? My vote to provide them with the basic necessities would have made a difference. I feel rotten about that. Well, I assumed (you all know about assuming — it makes an ass out of you and me) that we'd have a lovely new fire station with beautiful quarters for our Bethel Rescue. After all, "They" said that would happen, except the ones who actually knew what was going on. Maybe "They" were in la-la-land, just fantasizing, dreaming, or whatever or maybe "They" were envisioning a large, new Bethel Fire Station with Bethel Rescue attached located on some of that vacant land on the Parkway which is sprouting naught but a bumper crop of weeds. After all, "They" said it would be built there. "They" could be wrong, could "They"?

Talk about disinformation —what a prime example. At any rate, I'm sure that all the "Theys" have had time to reconsider, or will when the situation is understood. I have faith in our residents. We've stuck it to our Bethel Rescue. Let's remember, these are the same people along with the Bethel Fire Department and Bethel Police Department that we'll expect to haul our sorry butts out of wrecked cars, burning buildings, home accidents and assorted health emergencies. And we've treated them shamefully.

Imagine for a moment sleeping on a mattress on a concrete floor or on a sofa (that's not too bad, but I wouldn't want to do it) so you would be available to help someone else. I'm embarrassed for us. They are only asking for their basic needs and the ability to meet HIPPA and federally mandated regulations. I've read Cheryl Bennett's letter several times, and I don't believe it can be explained any clearer. I hope The Citizen will reprint it.

Come on, folks —let's give those that care for us the necessary things they need to do the job. I want something to appear on the November ballot that answers their request. How about you? Let's redeem ourselves. Write some letters to The Citizen. Talk with the selectmen. Let's find out what we have to do to right this wrong. Picture this – how are you going to feel if you need their services?

Selectmen: Dutch Dresser (824-3970), Don Bennett (824-2526), Reggie Brown (824-2494), Al Barth (824-2931), Jack Cross (824-4066).

HOW PICKY IS LEGAL

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on the complaints of the town of Greenwood in reference to Doug Grover's yard.

Yes, he collects a lot of stuff. He is working very hard to have the junk cars hauled off. And as to Ivan Roberts' comments published in the Sun Journal Aug. 7 about his private yard, none of this is visible from the road. How "picky" is it legal to be?

SUDBURY CANADA DAY THANKS

To the Editor:

Once more it is my pleasure to express the deepest appreciation to everyone who helped make the 2003 Sudbury Canada Days a success. For all those who helped with events, furnished pies, and provided financial support a special thanks is in order.

Office secretary Danna Nickerson and Society Curator Randall Bennett also tend to a myriad of tasks that make this event happen each year. Planning starts for the next one almost as soon as the current one is completed. These two staff members do an outstanding job of providing assistance in keeping things going smoothly.

Sudbury Canada Days attracts visitors from around the nation and Canada. It has activities for the whole family and we frequently get comments that reflect its positive and authentic nature.

We look forward to another celebration in 2004, and I hope that a wide variety of visitors will again be in attendance.

Stan Howe
Executive Director, Bethel Historical Society

Our part of the world — through the eyes of a visitor from India

(Note: The following trip report was prepared by Simi Anwar, one of a group of Rotarians from India who visited New England earlier this year. The Congregational church she mentions in the latter part of the report is the West Parish Congregational Church in Bethel. We trust Citizen readers will find the writer's fresh perspective and sense of humor make for an insightful and sometimes amusing sketch of our own culture as seen through the eyes of someone from another. —MRD)

By SIMI ANWAR

The sincerity of purpose that hallmarks the Rotary GSE is compelling. It kinders a unique synergy between two diverse cultures and civilizations, between languages and beliefs, between techniques and artifacts and in the process enriching, both personal and professional lives.

Amidst the load of details in the weeks preceding our GSE visit, I had not forgotten that our trip had a larger purpose, to promote, "world peace and understanding." Towards this end, I prepared a tiny two-point agenda for my visit to District 7780 in the USA. One, to plug 'Non-Violence," representing in spirit, the ethos of our country, specially relevant in today's unsettling global climate and secondly, to try and update the stereotype image of India as an erstwhile spice-route destination, inhabited only by farmers and snake charmers. The idea was to share some pride and shed some prejudice.

Half my agenda was knocked off in my first few hours of landing. The job was already accomplished by a whole generation of technocrats, not just by lip service, but by example. I must confess, I was not prepared for this shift in paradigm. They may not have heard of snake charmers, but they did hear of Sabir Bhatia's tryst with Bill Gates, they had heard of Rajat Gupta, CEO of McKinsey International and Indira Nooyi, incumbent CEO of Pepsi Worldwide, among others. If this was another stereotype, I had no complaints. It's not difficult to see that the road connecting the next million people will also be paved with silicon.

Having said that, I must admit that I realized soon enough, that I had plenty to unlearn myself.

For starters, the cult-status of the MacDonald hamburger is a reality only in India, and gourmet remains reassuringly traditional, in this case wholesome New England Chowder. More than the Kashmir policy, it was mushroom curry that appealed. Global destination brands built around food have been eminently successful, and the time for our curries has arrived.

The predominant landscape wasn't of high-rise buildings but of picture postcard houses with five-acre gardens. Life wasn't as fast as made out to be in Hollywood movies. High-octane materialism and high-risk behavior was an exception and not the rule.

Dogs are an integral part of American households. A family of two would have a mandatory three dogs in sizes of varying degrees and pedigrees. The expression, "cat-on-a-hot-tin-roof" would describe the majority part of our team in the company of dogs.

Nearly everything, every aspect of life is honed to cutting-edge perfection. From exchanging greetings to dishwashing to weed whacking in the garden is high precision. The Americans have an unflinching capacity to work, hunger for enterprise and an enormous capacity to have fun. My favorite souvenir from the Granite State is a license plate from a car which says, like every car in the state: "Live Free Or Die." From one democracy to another, I couldn't have found a more endearing memento.

Meeting each day head-on at 7 a.m. to the dot, I often wondered aloud if wristwatches in America had any use of three needles, wasn't the seconds needle enough? They wondered back promptly, with an equally wide grin, if sundials were popular in India.

New England in the spring season was eye candy. Resplendent in blooming daffodils, tulips and the red shock of maple trees, the scenery was breathtaking in the Pine Tree State. We did get a chance to set foot in the hallowed portals of Harvard University. I recall it was a moment of truth for each one of us, as we sat and reveled in the academic environs, dreamt and simply inhaled.

I had the privilege of visiting a Congregational church one wet Sunday morning when I was feeling low and missing home. It was also an opportunity to exchange my Indian salute of divinity, "Namaste," with the local populace. And as I sang this hymn, along with my Rotarian family and the local parish, I felt a peacefulness and in a sense, a world citizen and in the hymn I could clearly see the symbolism:

"We are pilgrims on a journey,
We are travelers on the road.
We are here to help each other,
Go the mile and bear the load.
I will hold the light for you,
In the shadow of your fear.
I will hold my hand out to you,
Speak the peace you long to hear.
I will share your joy and sorrow,
Till we've seen the journey through."

Opening their hearts and homes for friends they had yet to make, the hospitality of my seven host families was a truly humbling experience for me. I have changed in ways that one probably cannot describe, or completely understand yet. The experience is over, but not the impact on my life.

I learnt that there are two educations, one that teaches us how to make a living and the other, how to live. I also learnt that the easiest way for me to grow as a person is to surround myself with people smarter than I am.

Flung between the shores of Time and Destiny, District 7780 is no longer merely a foreign habitation and a name, a geographical location, across half the globe and 18 hours of relentless flight. New England is just a heartbeat away.

We have each had an opportunity to see how Rotary employs the muscle of its great reach and resources and pickets for peoples' causes, with the same ultimate goal of "Service Above Self." To promote understanding and tolerance, to rise above race, and to care for another's creed seems that much more significant now.

I was told that in Rotary, there are no strangers, only friends you haven't met yet. To build bridges of goodwill between far-flung communities, to add that extra dimension to our lives, was a reward in itself, and to carry the torch of the Rotarian Spirit, an honour bestowed.

trict Exchange and Adult Ed programs, and Code Enforcement Officer Rich St. John concluded the new offices do not constitute a change of use — and thus do not trigger town review.

As for a review by the Fire Marshal's Office, Powell said he knew of no plans for one.

Occupant and firefighter safety

Nonetheless, Young wrote, the Fire Department "has various safety concerns with this building.

"In the past the building was used as a school and was unfit to be used," Young wrote, adding: "nothing has been done to change any safety concerns."

Among those concerns, Young said, is the possibilities of lead-based paint, asbestos and oiled floors — all of which present potential hazards not only for the building's occupants, but also for the BFD's volunteer members, in the event they are called on to battle a fire there.

The Ethel Bisbee School was discontinued as a classroom building in 1990, for both budgetary reasons and concerns over its safety.

Two years later, SAD44 voters narrowly (599-554) approved a $4.9 million renovation and expansion of the nearby Crescent Park School.

Briefly

Tax rate up less than expected

GREENWOOD —Town selectmen last week opted to increase the property tax rate to 16.75 mils, up from 16.5 for the previous year. The increase, the first in four years, is only half what had been predicted at Town Meeting time in March, when Town Manager Carol Whitman predicted a rate of 17 mils would be needed. Whitman said Monday she still believes a greater increase will be needed in the near future, in order to replenish the town's reserve accounts and to prepare for expenses such as the repair of the Alder River dam, a likely revaluation, and the ongoing need to maintain the town's fleet of heavy equipment. "I see $60,000 to $80,000 that needs to be raised in the next year to begin to get a handle on things," she said Monday.

Access Road costs increase

NEWRY —The cost to rebuild the Sunday River Access Road will increase by at least $12,000 to $15,000, selectmen learned at a special meeting Monday. Contractor Steve Swasey found stumps buried under old gravel he removed from the roadbed. The stumps were apparently buried during the road's original construction in 1986, according to Joe Aloisio, Sunday River engineer. Swasey removed the stumps, many of which were largely intact, along with other surrounding organic material. If left in the roadbed, the stumps could eventually disintegrate and cause the pavement above to sink. Swasey asked to be paid for the additional gravel needed to fill the space, but will not charge more for excavating and hauling the stumps away, Aloisio said. Swasey had proposed to do the project for $337,000. Selectman Jim Largess said he was somewhat uncomfortable with upping the price, because two other companies had put in proposals for the original project, "and now the price is changing." But, he said, he saw little alternative but to pay for the extra gravel. Largess asked the board to wait to give final approval until its next regular meeting, so Swasey will have time to solidify his estimate for the additional gravel and work. In March, Town Meeting voters approved up to $384,000 for the project.

Soccer registration underway

BETHEL —Registration forms for the Saturday morning soccer program to be held at Telstar will be available at the Town Office until Aug. 29. Boys and girls from kindergarten through sixth grade may participate. The program will run from Sept. 6 through Oct. 18. Cost is $10 and $15, respectively, for town residents and families; $15 and $20 for out of town.

Drowning victim's body recovered

FRYEBURG —A search dog and a Maine Warden Service diver teamed up last Thursday to recover the body of a Massachusetts man who drowned in the chilly Saco River Wednesday. A warden service spokesman says the body of 41-year-old Ronald Sheldon of Amesbury, Mass., was recovered around 3 p.m. about 150 yards downstream from where he was last seen. Authorities say the body was located by Nancy Troubh of Poland and her search dog Gus. The golden retriever started barking on the shore, then swam into the water and circled an area approximately ten feet deep. Sheldon and two friends had gone swimming last Wednesday near the Fryeburg-Brownfield town line. They encountered trouble in a strong current and a fourth man in the group swam in from shore to help. Two of the swimmers were pulled to safety, but Sheldon didn't make it.

Foothills Web site lists events

NORWAY —The Western Oxford Foothills Web site has been expanded to include a database of recurring community events that can be searched by town, season and subject matter. Subjects range from community meals or sales to agricultural fairs and ethnic festivals. The listings give a location, general description and a means of contacting someone for further information. Organizations normally select a generally recurring time for these events such as a Saturday in August. The Web site also has two other searchable databases and a community events calendar where the public can look at specific dates for information about upcoming events throughout the 21 towns of Western Oxford Foothills. Nonprofit cultural organizations that are posting events range from a variety of arts and performance groups to libraries and the Norway/Paris public access station. Visit the site at www.westernfoothills.com

Periods of unemployment lengthen

AUGUSTA —Long-term unemployment continues to rise in Maine, though the state's unemployment rate remains well below the national average. The state's average duration of unemployment in May was 17.6 weeks, up from 15.7 weeks a year earlier. Thus far in 2003, 235 more people have exhausted their unemployment insurance benefits than last year, an increase of 3.5 percent. Nationally, 1.6 million people were unemployed for longer than 27 weeks in June 2002, according to the Labor Department. During the same month this year, there were 2 million unemployed for that period. Maine economists said the job market still remains dry. Those with specialized skills that are no longer hot have been hit hard by long-term unemployment because their experience is so specific it is hard for them to go into another field without extensive retraining, economists said. "It's not that there aren't jobs, although we do have unemployment. The problem is what kind of jobs," said Christopher St. John, executive director at the Maine Center for Economic Policy, a nonprofit research group that publishes reports on tax and budget policies.

Free disposal of old pesticides

AUGUSTA —In barns, basements, sheds or garages throughout the state reside tons of banned and unusable pesticides: old chemicals with infamous names like DDT, lead arsenate, 2,4,5-T and chlordane. The Maine Board of Pesticides Control (BPC) offers an annual free program to dispose of banned pesticides or pesticides that have become caked, frozen or otherwise rendered unusable. Four collection sites are offered. In addition to banned or unusable pesticides, BPC will continue to accept chlorpyrifos (Dursban) and diazinon products labeled for household use. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is phasing out home, lawn and garden use of these common insecticides in order to protect children's health. The collected chemicals go to out of state disposal facilities licensed by the U.S. EPA where they are incinerated or reprocessed. Citizens should call BPC at 287-2731 by Aug. 22 to register, find out collection dates and locations, and learn about the temporary storage and transportation of obsolete pesticides. More information, including the Obsolete Pesticide Inventory form, can be found at BPC's Web site at www.thinkfirstspraylast.org.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Thursday, Aug. 7

At 1:05 a.m. police responded to a traffic accident with PI on the North Road. The driver, who suffered a minor injury, declined medical attention.

At 8:30 police responded to a complaint of golf cart theft at a local business. Photos were taken of the carts —which had been located — and the complainant was asked to provide information on the replacement value and damages.

At 5:50 p.m police responded to a report of a car-moose accident across from Telstar. There was minimal damage to the vehicle, but the moose, which was located in the nearby woods, had been seriously injured and was enthanized.

Friday, Aug. 8

Time unlisted. A caller reported the theft of a wicker chair from a display in front of a village business.

Ongoing

Over the course of the week several summonses were issued for dogs running at large.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log. It lists all cases of adults being arrested or issued a criminal summon in the 10 days prior to the newspaper's publication, but does not include all reports of other police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

once manufactured balloons, is adjacent to the hotel.

The company closed a plant in Rochester several years ago.

Chief Executive Tom Tillotson was not available for comment. Last year he cited competition from low-wage foreign companies and product liability lawsuits as factors in the financial difficulties.

Tillotson had reached an agreement late last year with Dynarex Corp. of Orangeburg, N.Y., to continue operations.

According to documents at the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Manchester reviewed by The Union Leader, Tillotson "may not be able to feasibly propose a plan" that would allow it to "remain in business."

The state Department of Resources and Economic Development has been helping displaced workers.

"For some people, this will be an opportunity to qualify for other positions," said the department's John Duclos, who said employment opportunities in the region are difficult.

The North Country is still reeling from the lengthy closure of the pulp and paper mills in Gorham and Berlin. Those mills, the largest employers in Coos County, reopened last year with new owners. The mills have been slowly increasing production and hiring more employees.

some people, using — and thereby killing — the embryos amounts to killing a human being. There are also concerns the experimentation could be abused.

Supporters of stem cell research argue the unused embryos would be killed anyway. Currently, research funded by the federal government is allowed only on existing embryonic cell lines — new ones cannot be developed. Advocates want to change that, to speed up the research process.

Looking at it from the perspective of a bed and a wheelchair, it didn't take Harris long to decide where he stood.

"I know that our state and our country can differentiate between clandestine cloning or immoral utilitarian agendas, and wonderful scientific research with a strong moral compass," he said.

A particular shock

Harris gets choked up when he talks about stem research. Losing the use of all four limbs would be devastating to anyone, but it may have been particularly so for Harris.

Before the accident, he was a body builder, scuba diver, mountain climber, equestrian, cyclist and sailor. And during the summer of 2001, he was also working on his new house himself.

Harris had returned to Maine after almost a decade in Texas, where he had been employed as a social worker in outdoor adventure-based programs. He was drawn to Woodstock because his brother was here at the time. "I fell in love with the area," said Harris.

Then the accident. He spent more than two months in the hospital and rehabilitation.

ROLLING FOR RESEARCH Patrick Carleton Harris plans to drive his electric wheelchair from Fort Kent to Portsmouth, N.H., next month, a distance of 411 miles. Harris operates the chair by blowing or inhaling through a tube that is in turn connected to a computer. The chair was provided through state funding. (Photo by Alison Aloisio)

At times, as he lay in the hospital, he felt hopeless. But, Harris said, "One day I just said no. I wasn't going to lie down."

Harris is now living in an apartment complex in South Paris, where he receives round-the-clock care. With help from a grant through Community Concepts, he is pushing forward with plans to finish his house.

The stem-cell cause helps keep him going, he says. He's been in touch with perhaps the country's most famous quadriplegic, actor Christopher Reeve, a strong advocate for stem cell research.

Before his accident, Harris was a body builder, scuba diver, mountain climber, equestrian, cyclist and sailor.

Harris can use a computer through voice command. It provides another medium to gather information on the issue, as well as to make his own opinions known.

He also has the support of his 18-year-old daughter, Ally. She is helping him plan his wheelchair trek.

Harris can travel about eight miles an hour in his electric "Turbo Arrow" wheelchair. His specially-adapted van will precede him on the trip, which he plans to have videotaped.

"I've decided that being paralyzed should not prevent me from following my adventurous spirit," he said. "With the good Lord's help, it's time I went on another expedition, this time for a very just cause."

He expects to leave Fort Kent Sept. 3, and travel primarily on Route 11. He figures he can make about 40 miles a day.

Along the way, he'll talk to anyone who will listen. "I'm going to scream, 'Stem cell research!'" said Harris.

The New Jersey legislature has been debating whether to allow the research in that state. Harris hopes Maine will join the debate, and ultimately allow it here.

"'As Maine goes, so goes the nation,'" Harris said. "We've shown our country that we can be conservative, and yet demonstrate great leadership and vision at the same time. I hope we can again."

WH. MTS. BOOK

"The prevailing attitude during the era of town settlement was that forests were an obstruction to agriculture, and therefore should be removed as soon and as rapidly as possible."

There's also something for Mainers, who know the White Mountain region "doesn't stop at the state line," said Bennett.

He includes information on events and places ranging from Grafton Notch to Fryeburg.

First printing's a one off

The book is now available at the Historical Society at a cost of $24.99.

The first edition's run is 1,500 copies. Anyone who likes collectibles might want to grab one quickly — the book refers to the Old Man of the Mountain in the present tense. The famous natural feature collapsed while the book was being printed.

The second edition, to be printed later this year, will be corrected to change all references to the past tense.

Randy Bennett on his latest book:

"It has been said that the White Mountains have had more written about them than any other mountain range in the world, the Alps excepted. My research for this new book has allowed me to return to many of the 'classic' histories of the region, which I read many years ago. I was surprised by how many facts and stories contained in these invaluable chronicles that I had forgotten about. Since the format for this book allowed for an extended amount of text, I also made an effort to locate and include interesting quotations from accounts about the White Mountains left by explorers, settlers, tavern keepers, guidebook writers, and historians, many of whom were relatively unfamiliar to me. Through my study of the human history of this seventy-mile segment of the Appalachian Mountain chain, I've learned that there is a delicate and important balance between the 'civilized' aspects of the region and the unique 'wilderness realm' of the White Mountains, much of which is protected as part of the 770,000-acre White Mountain National Forest." I've also learned that a comprehensive, carefully-researched, and well-written history of this fabled district —America's first tourist playground —Is still needed, since the last effort of major consequence was published in 1916.

Bethel

by Virginia Keniston

Evelyn Nickerson has moved to Ledgeview Living Center and would enjoy cards and visits from friends. Her address is: Evelyn Nickerson, 141 Bethel Road, Room 105B, West Paris, ME 04289.

Mark, Lori, Rachel, Elizabeth and Alan Greenleaf of Foster, R.I. spent several days visiting relatives in town recently. During their stay, Danna and George Nickerson hosted a cookout and family gathering at their home on Kilborn Street. Attending were the Rhode Island Greenleafs, Arlene Brown, John and Arlene Greenleaf, Ann, Eldon and Nathaniel Greenleaf, Sondra Withey and Rachel and Christine Greenleaf. The Mark Greenleaf family, Kate and Chad Dumais of Livermore and George and Danna Nickerson enjoyed a hike to The Roost in Evans Notch. Kurt and Tammy Brown of Westbrook joined the group after the hike and had supper with the Mark Greenleaf family and Arlene Brown at Pat's Pizza.

The Mundt-Allen Legion picnic at Stony Brook Campground was well attended on Sunday by Legionnaires and guests.

Paul and Sally Bodwell, Bud and Mary Paine, Herb and Dottie Adams and Derek of Hanover, Dick Paine of Manchester, N.H., attended the Glines Family Reunion at the home of Cass Glines Dyer in Bangor on Saturday.

Norm and Sylvia Clanton are enjoying another visit by Norm's dad, Norman Clanton of San Antonio, Texas.

Amy Davis attended a String Concert on Friday where her grandson, Owen Davis, participated after a week at Music Camp.

Jeni Shaw has been accepted at Unity College for the fall semester.

Cross Country Quilters journeyed to Skowhegan to the Fabric Store on Tuesday, Aug. 5. This week, they met at Rostay on Tuesday.

"78 was Great" and the reunion from Telstar this past Saturday was also great.

The Scribner's Mill weekend was very interesting. Many activities, such as spinning, weaving, cattle exhibits, shingle making, and much food, were available. The mill is being renovated as it was in the old days – remarkable historic project.

Tim Brooks had a Pig Roast Saturday evening. The Brooks are leaving for California.

Mary Keniston joined her daughter, Donna Rice-Howe of Waterford, for an overnight visit with Chip Howe, Barbara and children of Scarborough recently.

Justin and Sue Rice with daughter, Alyssa, of Guilford, Conn., were on vacation at "The Chalet" at Sunday River the past weekend and visited with grandmother Mary Keniston and Earlon (Lefty).

Rachel Rice and Pat Welch of Guilford, Conn., were also at "The Chalet" the past weekend. Joining their families were Doug and Sandra Rice on Friday, who were returning from a vacation at Bar Harbor the past week.

The Rice families were all gathered with Mary and Lefty for an outdoor barbecue at Donna Rice-Howe and Alton's home on Saturday at Waterford. Donald Rice and family, Sheldon Rice and children, Jaidyn and Dalton, all of Waterford were present, along with Alton ("Chip") and Barbara Howe, Jeselle and Kaylea of Scarborough and Rob and April Howe Olmstead of Cranston, R.I.

At the Aug. 8 meeting of Oxford Hills Duplicate Bridge there were 5 1/2 tables and a Howell movement was played.. First-place winners were Leslie Lord and Rosemarie Goodwin; second, Errol and Pam Libby; third, Nancy Farmer and Don Hitch; and fourth, Richard Allen and Pete Cummings.

The Hanover Planning Board met on Aug. 6 to act on several items. The board approved two applications that were presented by property owners on South Shore Road. One was approved, pending an investigation by CEO John Gauthier, as to the location of the septic system.

The Hanover Selectboard is scheduled to meet on Tuesday, Aug. 19, at 5 p.m. at the Town Office.

Tom and Patty Hayden and their two children, Chelsia and Kaylor, recently visited Betty Hayden. They are from Michigan and have been vacationing at Thompson Lake in the Poland/Oxford area.

The Maine Department of Transportation has been working along Route 2 in Hanover most of the summer. They are cutting back bushes, replacing bad culverts and cleaning out ditches. The work is in preparation for a repaving project next year.

Derek and Faye Souve along with Regan and Amber have returned home following a camping trip to Papoose Pond.

This sticky air reminds me of Indiana summers, where it is so humid your tools rust on the bench in the garage. And, wouldn't you know it? Our electric dryer went on the "fritz" last Monday (broken drive belt). It's so humid that clothes don't dry even if you hang them up. Mona tried hanging some wet clothes in the sunroom and turned the ceiling fan on; that succeeded in getting them dry after a while. Brooks Brothers finally got the dryer belt in last Friday, and I had the dryer working by just after noon. You don't know how much you depend on something until you don't have it for a while.

Our new neighbors just "up the road from here" are building a concrete house; the walls are made of six inches of concrete, sandwiched between two-and-a-half-inch layers of Styrofoam insulation, giving them walls 11 inches thick. They are installing solar panels, which will provide electricity, and they are planning to have radiant heat pipes in the floors. A large furnace in the garage will heat the water for the radiant heat system. All this will operate independently from the Central Maine Power lines, which don't extend that far into the "boonies." It looks like a very interesting and efficient home design, and we can't wait until it is completed so we can see how it all "comes together."

by Gil Seeley

The 16th annual Barnett reunion was held in Dixfield at the camp-ground on July 26, hosted by the Rosenburg family of Bryant Pond. A large crowd of all ages was present.

Bill and Sylvia Wight spent a weekend recently at their son David and Ann's farm in Milford. Stephen and Marlene of Old Town, also their grandson and wife, Erin and Jette of Eddington, joined them for a cookout Saturday evening with the rest of their family.

Graveside services will be held Friday, Aug. 22, for Bradford "Brownie" Jones at the Head of Tide Cemetery in Newry at 1 p.m. All are welcome to the home of Carolyn Bennett, Route 26, Bennett Road, Newry, for refreshments after the service.

It's a jungle out there and we really mean it. The heat and humidity are not what Maine is all about. The Celestial Weatherman can stop punishing us any day now.

Congratulations to Miami Blake and Gary Shuflett on their recent marriage. It was a garden wedding at The Balsams Grand Resort Hotel. Hors d'ouerves were served on the lawn following the ceremony. A "sit down" Balsams dinner was held at 3 p.m.. Dancing in the Ballroom was enjoyed until 8 p.m. All agreed that it was an outstanding day.

Mary Davis is recovering from recent surgery and doing well.

On Tuesday, Aug. 31, people from Upton, Errol, Wilson's Mills and Magalloway traveled up Route 16 to Grant's Kennebago Camps for lunch. This very remote area is at least 12 miles in from the main road. Following lunch a drive around the causeway brought us out to the Lincoln Pond Road. We also sidetripped to the Kennebago River Dam to take photos of this very picturesque spot. A hearty lunch was served at the lodge and a fine time was enjoyed by all. Grant's Camps had a rich history in the era of sporting camps. In the early days, a bone-aching, 12-mile ride by buckboard did not deter the "sports." By 1913, guests were able to take advantage of the railroad from Oquossuc to the foot of the lake. To this day all boats used are "Rangeley's," still considered by many to be the finest lake boat in Maine. The first Rangeley was built in 1871. The "double ender" was sold for $35 dollars. Obviously, they don't realize that the finest lake boat in 2003 is the Pontoon Party Boat. I did not see a single Pontoon Boat on Kennebago Lake. Incidentally, it's fly-fishing only on this lake.

My private "party boat," (a paddle job) was launched on Saturday after two years on shore killing the lawn. A "thank you" to Roger Lavallee, who probably ruptured a disc moving it. I was rained out on my first cruise on the "yacht."

Goldfinches and flickers have arrived in numbers. The finches are definitely "eye candy" in their bright yellow plumage.

Larry Davis reports two pileated woodpeckers residing near his camp. They are having a great time chattering and ripping bark off trees.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

My grandson Reese was visiting with me the other day with his little brother Elijah. I spoil them rotten and let them get away with quite a bit, but when Reese started picking on Elijah and made some pretty horrible faces at him, I had to speak up.

As I was gearing up to give him a speech, he said "I know, Mom says if I make faces like this my face could freeze like this. She said that's what you used to tell her. Don't you think mothers say some silly things?"

Boy, that made me stop and think of some of the homespun wisdoms that my mother used to bestow upon me. She sure had some winners.

"If you sing before breakfast, you'll cry before supper," haunts me to this day. I have heard this little gem for as long as I can remember. I always thought it was something that she made up to make sure that I would eat my breakfast. Whatever her reason, it worked so well that should I find myself awakening with a song in my heart, I run to the kitchen to quickly consume some toast or cereal before it works it's way up to my lips.

I have spent my whole life wondering and worrying just a little bit if eating only toast counted as breakfast. What if I just had coffee and then sang along with the radio on my way to work. Would I be doomed to crying myself to sleep? What if I didn't eat breakfast and I just hummed; would that mean I would only sob a little? If my mother had only known what she was doing when she laid that singing/breakfast trip on me.

Another one of her favorite admonishments was: "If you sit on the table you'll get married before you're able."–now there's a winner! What exactly is that supposed to mean? If you sit on the table you'll get married at age 10? When I was little I used to be so afraid if I sat on the table I would be forced into marriage with a cruel old man and live a life of drudgery. Now I ask you, is that any kind of nightmare to pass on to a child?

When I was a teen-ager I was so afraid that marriage would pass me by that I would sit on the table at every possible opportunity. I never did figure out when I would be "able" to be married. Even after 33 years of marriage I still don't know if I'm "able."

Then there were all those things I shouldn't do to various parts of my body or horrible things would happen. Such as the famous face freeze threat, which I obviously passed onto my daughter who is now passing it on to her kids. I thought it was so stupid when I was a kid I can't imagine why I visited my children with it.

I hope I didn't pass on the tongue threat. If I should be caught by my mother sticking my tongue out at one of my brothers I was sure to hear that someday someone would grab it and pull it right out of my mouth by the roots. I certainly had nightmares over that one. Then of course, if I stretched my mouth with my fingers I was warned that it would never go back into shape. And how can I ever forget that cracking my knuckles would lead to fingers the size of baseball bats. I might have passed that one on to my son.

Boy, that made me stop and think of some of homespun wisdoms that my mother used to bestow upon me. She sure had some winners.

There were also a bunch of other things that I couldn't do or bad things would happen to her body and it would be all my fault. "If you step on a crack you'll break your mother's back," or "Don't say ain't or your mother will faint." When I wasn't worrying about breaking my mother's back or making her faint, I had to contend with the possibility of breaking her heart.

"If you do that, you'll break your mother's heart!" I spent most of the fifth grade in fear that if I didn't toe the line I would bring about my dear mother's demise or at least cause her great pain. It really did help to keep me in line, and I think I might have passed that one on to my kids, too.

No child wants to cause their mother pain. However, I recall that on one occasion when she wouldn't let me spend the night at one of my friend's homes on a weekend, I ran up the sidewalk on Main Street stepping on every crack I could find all the while saying: "It just ain't fair!"

Her back survived my rebellion and I don't recall that she ever fainted, and that's a good thing because she was very quick to point out that bad things came in threes. Every time there would be a fire or an accident in town my mother would say: "Oh, oh, bad things come in threes, there's one."

After a period of time had gone by and no disasters befell the neighborhood, my brothers and I would attempt to shake her belief. But oh no, she would have none of our doubting sass. "Odile Palmer slipped on a knitting needle and sprained her ankle and Nappy Olmstead had a flat tire and that makes three, so there."

The weather played a big role in my mother's life, therefore my life, and she had many barometers to predict what the National Weather Service seemed at a loss to do.

"Red sky at morning, sailors take warning." What that really meant was that I better not plan on going to the dance that particular night because the weather would probably be too bad to travel. If she resorted to: "If March comes in like a lamb, it will go out like a lion." That meant that I better not plan on any trips out of town for the month of March.

If I did have the opportunity to go the 25 miles all the way to the big city, I had to endure the "speech" before I went. "Sit next to a window just in case you get car sick." "Make sure your underwear is clean in case, God forbid, you are in an accident and have to go to the hospital." "Make sure you have enough money to make a phone call home just in case, God forbid, you are in an accident and have to call us to let us know that you are in the hospital."

There were a few other parts to the speech, but it always ended with: "Don't take gum, don't take candy, don't talk to strange men and don't get into strange cars, keep your legs crossed and your pants up and stick with your own group." I probably could have paid a little more attention to that one.

I'm sure I passed on more than a few of my mother's little sayings and advice to my kids and I'm sure they have passed some of them on to their own kids. I turned out okay, and my kids turned out okay and the way I see it, if my grandkids' faces don't freeze in some horrible grimace, they will turn out okay too.

old neighbor that lives at South Paris now, Kathryn Hakala, was there. Ann brought Colista up to Ann's home for the party and served ice cream and cake. Colista got gifts and cards and flowers, which pleased her.

Carl Curtis was up Sunday to have coffee with me. Also, Albert and Marie Curtis and William Curtis were here.

Marie and Albert Curtis visited Junior Penley and wife at their camp one day and helped him put his boat into the pond.

Raymond and Cheryle Curtis were going boating Sunday.

Stephen Cogswell of Freeport has been here for a week. He went home Friday.

I've seen a lot of traffic going in by our place, hauling big equipment. They hauled it back out today.

A thought to remember, 'The elevator to success is out of order. You'll have to use the stairs, one step at a time."

That's it for this week. Have a safe week and keep well.

More winners from Olde Home Days. The winners of our newest contest, "Bring on the Clowns" were: first, Garrison Bryant; second, Brooke Wardwell; third, Libby Wardwell, the dog. I hope this contest will continue and that we have a lot more clowns compete next year. Hey, if a dog can win third prize —.

Winners in the Road Apple, formerly known as the Cow Chip Flip Contest — Girls ages 6 to 8: first, Cassidy Mosher; second, Abby Smith; third, Amanda Smith. Boys ages 6 to 8: first, Austin Mills; second, Noah Mosher. Girls and Boys ages 9 to 11: first, Haylis McGill; second, Sara Mulcahey; third, Amy Mahar; first, John Mulcahey; second, Izaak Mills; third, Darin Jodrey. Adults: first, Robin Mosher; second, Melinda Averill; third, Kate Mulcahey: first, Sid Pew; second, Brian Mills; third, Jay Stabile. Congratulations to them all.

The theme for Olde Home Days, Lest We Forget, brought up a few memories. Former Andover resident Carl Harrigan and East Andover resident "Tink" Glover were on the same troop ship that went to Italy in January of 1945. They didn't know each other until after the war, but what are the chances of two Andover residents being on that same ship at the same time? My father, Ralph Stinson, was stationed on the island of Saipan during the war and one day someone tapped him on the shoulder and when he turned around behind him was his brother, Bill, who had just been transferred to that island. Then there was the day that my uncles, "Bud" and David Simmons, met when one was disembarking a ship and the other was getting on. After years of not seeing each other, all they could do was say hello and keep on going.

I have heard rumors that a new family, whose last name may or may not be something like Poy, have moved into town. It seems that there was an incident that had something to do with Mrs. Poy making a sculpture of the Eiffel Tower out of mashed potatoes and Mr. Poy, not realizing it was a work of art, sampled it. In order to make up for his artistic error, he made Pam, his wife, a replica of the Alamo using corn on the cob and crazy glue. This turned out to be another artistic catastrophe, because the family spent a greater part of the evening at the ER with junior because they couldn't get the crazy glue off his teeth. More about the amazing Poy family in later editions.

Quote of the Week, "If you don't want your daughter kissed, don't sit her under the mistletoe." See 'ya.

Last Saturday, Gerry Shimamura drove me to Lewiston where we both attended the funeral for Fritz Peterson. Since he had such a large family we weren't sure if everyone would fit in, but we all did. After the committal we all went back to Fred and Ellie's for the wake. It must have been a little difficult to feed the family after having just done it the week before for their 50th wedding anniversary, but, as usual, everyone pitched in and helped. Both Kathy Perron and Amy Peterson are natural hostesses and are no strangers to big gatherings, so they did most of the work. Ellie used to but she said she has retired from that. "Let the young ones do it" is her motto now, and I don't blame her. But she does supply the garage, which when clear of cars makes a very large place to set up tables and the spillover has the sun porches to eat in. And there is always the large kitchen table where us "oldsters" seem to take up residence. Norma sat there for a while and held three-week-old Amelia. I think the baby saved the day for her because she was very white when she came in but began to get some color back as she held and talked to Amelia. She is a lovely baby and very good most of the time, at least in the daytime, according to her mother. Well, most babies seem to turn night into day for a time, but they grow very fast and by next year at this time she will be walking and probably talking.

I finally have a working vehicle again, having traded in my 1990 Olds Cutlass for a 1994 Olds Cutlass, same color, off white, as my old one, but this one has a blue interior and the air conditioner works, a big help in this muggy weather. Ann Fitzmorris and I tried it out as we took our usual monthly grocery-shopping trip. The trunk is a little bigger than the other one, and I was surprised how much we managed to cram in it. Of course, that means there is not quite as much leg room in the back seat; but, it is big enough for my short legs if I have to sit back there, so that shouldn't bother. It is nice not to have to rely on others until one has to, which seems to come soon enough.

There is one lone duck swimming in the pond. I don't know where they all go to but this time of summer they seem to disappear. I am glad Ralph put up the hummingbird feeders because they are our biggest source of amusement right now. There seem to be about five different ones that come. The females are trim little birds with mostly gray feathers. One male is your typical ruby-throated hummingbird, but one of them is a little bigger and has a red breast also. They are very possessive of the feeders and chase each other off. There are two feeders with four holes each, but that doesn't mean they will share. Once in a great while I will see one at each feeder but they are back to each other. If they could see each other it would mean a chase so they seem to pretend that the other one is not there. I expected to see little ones at the feeders but I never do. Maybe they feed them until they are grown seeing as they are so small. I need to get a book on hummingbirds. Ralph says to search the computer and I have, but I either don't know what to look for or there is only a quick overview that tells you how to feed them and not much else. As an information highway it makes a good commercial opportunity, everything out there seems to require money.

I took Jazz-Poochie up to get his toenails trimmed, one of my first ventures with the car. He seemed to approve of the ride and he certainly rides a lot better than he used to; but, still very aware of the fact that he tore up my seat belts when he was younger, I don't leave him alone in the car. I don't want to find out that that hasn't changed. This time he had a man holding him while he got his nails cut and he didn't struggle quite as much as usual. He apparently has more respect for men. I don't know any dog that likes to have them cut though unless it is a show dog. They may not mind as someone is always fussing with them. Lucy was very glad to see him. She howled when I took him out of the pen and covered his face with dog kisses when he got back, which didn't impress him much. I should think they would be glad to get away from each other for a while. I would take them both but I can't handle them both at once and, as I say, I don't trust them alone in the car. The last time I left Lucy alone for a few minutes she ate the handle off a plastic coat hanger. That dog has to have a cast iron stomach. I would have thought she might have chewed the handle off but there was not a bit left anywhere in the car.

The Greenwood Fire Department met Monday evening with Maggie Ring, Lorraine Larson, Denise Swan and Veronica Penley present. They talked with Ray Seames, who was also there, about the needs of the department and then planned the Western Maine Fireman's Supper coming up in September.

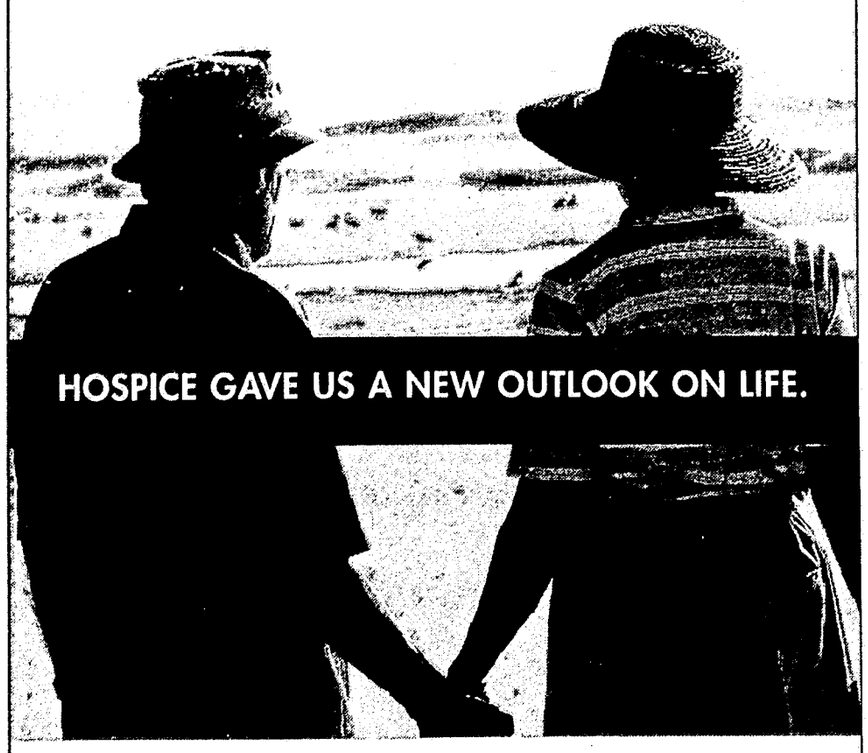
ANSWERING YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT HOSPICE CARE



HOSPICE GAVE US A NEW OUTLOOK ON LIFE.

"When we found out that my husband probably wouldn't survive his illness, a feeling of helplessness swept over our family. But then we learned about hospice care. Hospice care not only provided treatment for Jim's pain and symptoms, but also brought peace, dignity and comfort to him and our whole family. With their help, we even got to enjoy one more stay at the ocean. And those moments weren't just the last - they were some of the best."

What can hospice do for patients and their families?

- Hospice care provides a holistic approach in supporting the emotional, spiritual, and physical well being of the patient.
- Hospice care focuses on the needs of both the patient and the family with an emphasis on quality of life.
- Hospice care allows the patient and their family to play an active role in making care decisions.
- Hospice care makes it possible for patients and their families to receive care in a variety of settings–at home, in an assisted living facility, or when appropriate, a nursing facility or Hospice House such as the one now being developed by AHCH.
- The hospice team provides bereavement support for families in the year following the death of a patient.

AUG 14 2003

Looking ahead: on Sept. 7, David Lloyd is in concert at all services.

Franklin Grange 124 met on Monday, Aug. 4. The next meeting is Aug. 18 for Gentlemen's Night with a supper.

Don't forget the Blood Drive at the American Legion Hall, Locke Mills on Aug. 18 from 1 to 6 p.m. If you haven't been contacted, call Olive Risko at 665-2909 for an appointment or just walk in.

Dick and Jean Johnson of Connecticut called on Beatrice Farnum and Alice and Ken Hoyt on Thursday evening.

Alice and Ken Hoyt joined a family gathering at the home of JoAnn and David Crockett to celebrate David's birthday. Cake and ice cream were enjoyed.

The Historical Society museum features local memorabilia, art and antiques. Its collection is extensive. It also has a fine research library and a good museum store. Society members are on hand to help visitors. So visit soon. Treasurer Paul Billings and Vicki Mae recently watched the museum. Curator Larry Billings supplied a yellow rose from the Enchanted Florist for decoration. Attendance was very good — nine people. It was s busy weekend with much traffic, an auction and the blueberry festival.

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing

Todd Wing was recently named assistant baseball coach at St. Joseph College. Todd is a physical education teacher at Cathedral and Holy Cross in Portland. He is the son of Gary and Jeanine Wing of South Woodstock. We wish him good luck in his future.

Richard Wing and Frank Frazer went to a Westies ballgame in Rumford late one Wednesday afternoon, but it got rained out. They'll try again Thursday. All the players on the team are at least 30 years old. Our son, Rick, still plays at almost 48 years old.

Many in this area will be attending the wedding of Brandy Poland and Ryan Seames on Aug. 23.

Things are coming along pretty good on the new home going up across the road from us. Jim and Edna Boutilier will be enjoying the home when it is complete.

My sister, Evelyn Dunn, hasn't been feeling well and is going into the hospital as I write this. I've been on pins and needles waiting to hear.

The humid weather has been hanging on. Hope it's gone by the time you read this.

Larry Billings, curator of the Woodstock Historical Society, reports that the weather service in Gray put on the July program for the society. History Day will be Aug. 16, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., with a yard sale, food sale and museum tours. Tables for the parking lot are $3. Secretary Elaine Roberts and treasurer Paul Billings keep good records for the society. Society members are active and involved.

West Paris

by Joyce Lamb

Hot and muggy is what we have been looking for. The wells are full and the lawns have greened up so we could return to a more comfortable temperature with less humidity. Thankfully, nights are cool with all windows open.

Great-granddaughter, Emily, arrived Tuesday, the 5th at Mercy Hospital at 9:30 p.m.. Parents are Rob and Nina Hyssong. Grandmother is Jude Lamb and great-grandmothers are Florence McLaughlin and Joyce Lamb. The baby and parents are doing fine. Emily weighed in at 9 pounds, 9 ounces with lots of dark hair.

Connie Bacon has returned home from Stephens Memorial Hospital and is out and about again.

Beryl Waisanen is at Stephens Memorial Hospital and would welcome visitors.

On Sunday, Aug. 17, Dr. Robert Sallies will be the guest speaker at the West Sumner Universalist Church. Harriett Rudd is organist.

Beryl Bonney and I were in Auburn for groceries this week. We enjoyed lunch at the Chickadee Restaurant in Turner on the way home.

I was in Auburn Friday to have a new trailer hitch put on the van. The camper needs another trip to the ocean before the snow comes. Everything is now ready and all the camper needs is a good food supply and I will be off again.

The craft group is again meeting at the Universalist Church on Thursday afternoons at 1. Several crafts were finished this week and more are planned for next week. We are getting ready for the fall sale and would welcome more help.

Sunday, Molly Flaherty of Waterboro, celebrated her second birthday with a cookout at her home. Florence McLaughlin and Mel Young and I went to the party with grandfather Mike McLaughlin. Many relatives from both sides of the family attended. Some of the Flaherty's were from northern Maine. The sun did shine part of the day as well as hard rain, driving all inside for the ice cream and birthday cake. Molly had help opening here gifts from her little cousins. She preferred playing with each gift rather than opening. The new great-granddaughter, Emily, was the attraction, too, and all got to hold this newest addition to this large family.

Buffy is now very orange on his back. Hair is growing but not of the right color. What will he look like in a month? His personality is as it has always been but he does like to cuddle more at night, so he must be cold without his coat.

West Paris

by Bertha DeHaas

Oxford Pomona Grange 2 met on Tuesday night, Aug. 5, at West Paris Grange Hall for a 6:30 p.m. potluck supper followed by their monthly meeting and community service program. Jane Hosterman was lecturer for Stanley Howe, who was away at New England Grange Lecturer's Conference. This year's community service award recipients were Adeline and Emerson Clough of Flat Road in Bethel, for all the wonderful things they have done for the community over the years. Congratulations, folks.

Condolences go out today to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Doughty on the death of his mother, Sue Doughty of West Paris, who passed away on Aug. 4, and also to the rest of the family. Our thoughts and prayers are with you.

West Paris Grange 298 will put on their monthly supper at their hall on Church Street on Saturday, Aug. 16, from 5 to 6 p.m.

On Thursday, Aug. 21, West Paris Grange 298 will have a "Progressive Picnic" at 6 p.m. at the home of Andy and Nancy Dewing. We shall eat hamburgs, hot dogs and salads there, then leave to go to the home of Pat and Fred Breame for desserts. This is a "Fun Night" for the Grange family and friends. We all look forward to this event each year.

See you all next week.

Waterford

by Rockie Graham

What a week this has been. It rains, then it pours, then it is sunny and humid, then it rains. Saturday, it was sunny almost all day. The temperature went up to 90-plus with about 95 percent humidity, then it rained all night. For once, the grass in August, is not brown and dying. It is green and very alive. The garden has not needed watering in weeks. That is good. Now if the tomatoes would only turn red, David would be happy. We do have plenty of greens – lettuce and chard, and it appears we may have some corn after all. That is, we may have all of five or six ears. I figure it may be the same for everyone in Waterford, but I don't really know. I certainly haven't seen too many sales of corn along the roadside this far north.

David and I are very thankful for all the bottles people have been giving us. It has been a fun way to raise money for the honeymoon. My car smells like stale beer and other things, but that is okay. David vacuums it regularly, so it is fairly clean. We still haven't a handle on the potluck, but people can call Carol Timberlake at 824-6540. Musicians can still call Ross at 824-6545. Everyone we speak to says they are coming, so we expect to see all our friends there. We have arranged for the dumpsters to be emptied and plan on doing last-minute pickup Sunday night or Monday morning, but we shall see.

Still waiting for those calls from you Waterford residents giving me the latest happenings in town. Please let me know upcoming events and what has happened that is important to you and your friends and family.

On that note: The Waterford Library presents the sixth annual Sheena Fraser Lecture. Jeff O'Donal of O'Donal's Nurseries will give a slide presentation on Trees in Our Landscape on Tuesday, Aug 19 at 7 p.m. at the Wilkins Community House on Plummer Hill Road in Waterford Flats. Come and learn all about our trees and their uses.

The Waterford Historical Society will hold a potluck supper tonight, Aug. 14, at 6:30 p.m. The program is Artists and Artisans Past and Present. The presenters are the audience. It will be held on Plummer Hill Road in Waterford. All are welcome.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson

Hi readers. Thursday, July 31, Albert and I, Dale, Kitty and Matthew Nelson and Frances Grant went up to the Berman cottage on Lake Keewaydin and had a cookout with Iona Hunnedy and Zane and Nardia, who are from Belmont, Mass., and her parents, Carolyn and Donald Brighton, who are from Burnt Hills, N.Y. It was an awful good meal and company and more company wanted to join us by the lakeside picnic tables, but we shooed them away —a train of geese. They were very stubborn and insisted on coming up to the tables, but we told them to go to the next camp, and after a while they did, honking their displeasure all the way.

I went to the Albany Congregational Church Sunday night to the piano concert to hear and see Phil House. It's always such a pleasure to hear and see him perform. That piano sure had a good workout, as his fingers flew across those keys making beautiful music. Also, Kathy Haley accompanied him singing along favorites. She has a nice singing voice and a jolly personality, which added to the program. The little girl who sang "Jesus Loves Me" was sweet. At intermission downstairs in the vestry there were all kinds of goodies on the refreshment table for everyone to enjoy. There must have been about 60 people there. Phil had tapes of his music and his father, Beaumont (Bunker) House, sold them during the program.

On Aug. 6 and 7, Larry Fox mowed the grass in our fields here. He does a good job and it looks nice.

On Aug. 7, Johnny Files from Norway was in town helping Frances Grant do some work around the house. Don't forget the famous annual turkey and all the fixings supper at the Stoneham Church on Aug. 14. This is always good and for a good cause. There will also be a thrift table outside (weather permitting). Loretta needs help tending it. Please, someone volunteer.

Tuesday evening, Aug. 5, Marg Crown and Donna Gagne hosted a baby shower for Megan Hamlin at Room 236, Evergreen Valley Inn. There were about 15 people present. I think it was a real surprise, as she thought it was a staff meeting to attend. She got a lot of nice gifts. In the beginning, there were a few "loosen up" and get-acquainted games with prizes played, which were fun for all. There was nice cold punch and all kinds of goodies to eat and a fan to cool everyone off, as it was a hot, muggy evening.

Yesterday, Marcel Longpre put in a new water pump and tank for us. It's always something isn't it, but one less worry to think about —except to pay for it.

Albany

by Dana & Sheila Dyke

Greetings from Albany Township.

Well, we don't know about you, but, we've just about had enough rain for now. We went down to Pam and Carlton Rugg's on Sunday and picked veggies, and we could not get over the amount of food ready to harvest nor the size of some of the produce. The beets were huge, the green beans plentiful, and the broccoli on their second growing. We know the rain's been good for some things, like the gardens, but, it sure makes it gloomy for other things, like family outings or nice dry rides.

We celebrated Dyana's 14th birthday last weekend by having some of her friends over and taking them out on

Mollyockett Chorus concludes series

The Libbie Goodridge Kneeland Memorial Summer Series will conclude its season with the female barbershop harmonies of the Mollyockett Chorus on Sunday, Aug. 24 at 4 p.m. at the gazebo on the Bethel Common.

The Mollyockett Chorus, a local chapter of Sweet Adelines International, is an organization of women singers committed to advancing the musical art form of barbershop harmony. Chartered in 1996 in Norway, this group of enthusiastic ladies of all ages and backgrounds has grown to over 30 members on the risers. Chorus members are from many communities throughout western and central Maine. The chorus is under the musical direction of Pat Fleck.

The concert begins at 4 p.m. and run sixty to ninety minutes in length. The rain site is Bingham Auditorium on Church Street at Gould Academy. The public is cordially invited to attend.

a shopping spree, movies and food (of the junk variety). We think the girls all had fun – we know we did just watching them picking out clothes and makeup and other goodies teenage girls like. Happy Birthday, Dyana.

Dotty Duddy reports that she has had many visitors this past summer, ranging from her brothers, nephews, and grandchildren, to friends. She says that the visits have made this difficult time far much easier. She is expecting a visit from her nephew, Tim Rice, and his sons, Cameron and Nathanial, later this week. We hope that their stay is pleasant and that the sun will be shining so that they can have some time out on the pond. Dotty also tells us that Linda and Jim Champagne are keeping her posted on the beaver family that entertains her every night while she and Sadie canoe the pond.

Pastor Gammon, as usual, preached a good sermon on Sunday, and we hope that he can complete it soon. Sunday services begin at 9:30 a.m. This coming Sunday is the third Sunday of the month, and that means following services there will be fellowship, friendship and goodies in the vestry. We hope to see you there.

Prayer meeting and adult bible study will continue on Wednesday evenings beginning at 6:30 at the church. We want to again thank Pastor Gammon for giving more of his time to this. We want to also, again, extend an invite to all those who are in need of prayer, or know those who are in need, to come and bring those needs up for prayer. Bible study follows, and we continue to explore the Book of James. What a great book. It is probably the shortest book in the Bible, but, in our opinion anyway, it seems to have quite a lot to say. If you haven't read it, you should. It says that we've always thought of Christian life to be faith and service and how the one aspect of the Christian life (faith) cannot be truly complete without the other (service — the doing of good works). We've been studying it now for the past few weeks, and are still in chapter two.

Don't forget that next Thursday will be the last supper for the Ladies' Circle. You can arrive at 5 p.m. to start picking out your seats, and the meal begins at 5:30 p.m. There have been some really good turnouts, and we hope the trend will continue to this meal. The meal costs $6 per adult, and $3 per child.

We continue to hold Bud Bowden and Reynold Jordan in our thoughts and prayers, and wish the best for their families during these times.

Best wishes for a safe week. God Bless.

From the

Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

Planning a staff retreat, a family reunion or simply a party in a beautiful setting sometime in the future? If so, you should attend August's Business After Hours, scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 21, at Camp Wekeela on Route 219 in Canton from 5 to 7 p.m. This wonderful facility is offering a chance to swim at their lovely beach, enjoy cold beverages and refreshments and tours of their grounds to all in attendance. Please RSVP to the chamber office by Tuesday, Aug. 19, and we'll try to arrange carpools.

The summer is winding down and it will soon be time to think about autumn —back to school —and the harvest.

All are invited to get involved somehow in celebrating the harvest here in the Bethel area, whether it's decorating with a scarecrow in front of your house or business, and/or having a special or business promotion on the weekend of the sixth annual Bethel Harvest Fest sponsored by Oxford Networks, which is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 20, on the Bethel common.

A full schedule of events is coming together for the event, including an arts and crafts festival from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., entertainment on the gazebo (sponsored by Hancock Lumber and CB Kenworth), chainsaw carving compliments of Ted Walker of Peru (and a raffle for a moose carving), and the very popular Chowdah Fest, sponsored this year by U.S. Foodservice. Make sure to put the date on your calendar, and plan to participate in some way.

From the

Bethel Rotary Club

Last week in Rotary, Betsy Foster, Mary Beth Brandt (MB) and Cabot Stone visited with us and introduced us as to what is Wilderness Medical Associates (WMA). Brandt, operations director since 1997, addressed information about the organization and instructor Cabot Stone informed us on the curriculum and instructors.

WMA was founded in 1978 by Peter Goth, MD, to provide medical training and risk management for Outward Bound schools in the US. Dr. Goth saw a need for training for rural or backcountry travel. Conventional medical training did not address the specialized wilderness context in remote areas that had elements of delayed rescue transportation, exposure to severe environments and the limited availability of equipment. WMA tailored courses to these needs and discovered that the demand for this training extended to organizations as diverse as the National Park Service, outing clubs, rural ambulance services, the FBI, and oil exploration companies.

Today, their owner is Dr. David Johnson and they are a nationally and internationally known organization for what they do. They have grown in 1985 of 75 courses to over 235 courses taught in 1997 and in 2002 instructing over 6,500 students. They teach in other parts of the world, too, such as Chile, Finland, Belgium, and Canada.

Furthermore, WMA provides medical screening services to camps and adventure companies and makes presentations at professional conferences.

There are over 200 instructors with WMA. Each one has extensive patient care and outdoor industry experience and once again, they, too, come from around the world. Cabot was a paramedic, EMS worker when a life-threatening experience beckoned him to become an instructor.

Cabot reiterated that most medical training is designed for an urban environment with rules, which often don't work in a wilderness context. In a wilderness environment you need to change the rules and WMA's curriculum, self-published, reflects that. Information from WMA brochure, MB and Cabot and for further formation, please visit www.wildmed.com

Happy August Birthday to Dawna Hannan, Jim Mann, Rene McGrew, and Jane Ryerson.

Congratulations Jim Mann on being the Ace of Spades Winner.

From the

SWOAM

The Western Maine Chapter of the Small Woodland Owners Association of Maine will hold its annual field day beginning at 9 a.m. Aug. 16 at the Fred Huntress farm on the Bailey Hill Road.

The walking tour will look at 33 years of forest management on two tracts of land, which have included pulpwood and saw log sales, biomass operation and tree planting followed by hardwood control.

Red pines planted in 1984 and 85 are now 8 to 10 inches in diameter and have been pruned up to 13 feet. The nature walk will look at old growth pitch pines, hand-planted white pines, a black spruce peat bog once mined, and two vernal pools with duck nest boxes. The trails are mostly flat and provide easy walking.

Fred, a prominent western Maine forester and surveyor as well as longtime SWOAM director, can be reached at 998-4565 for further information. Signs will direct field day visitors from Route 26 in Poland onto the Aggregate Road by the Poland Town Garage and then to the site. Coffee and doughnuts will be available at 8:30 a.m. The approximately three-hour session is free and open to the public.

SWOAM is a statewide educational nonprofit organization that encourages sound forest practices, which promote long-term woodland ownership. The western Maine chapter, one of nine in Maine, sponsors monthly educational programs.

From the

Telstar Alumni Association

The Telstar Alumni Association held its sixth annual Alumni Day at Telstar Regional High School on Saturday, Aug. 9, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Alumni Association provided a BBQ of hot dogs, chips and soda for everyone who attended the event. Those in attendance had a good time. A discussion was had on how to attract more alumni members to our events and, also, how to make more funds available for the Educational Assistance Award given out at graduation each June.

A business meeting and election of officers took place, New officers are: president, Christine Greenleaf; vice president, Alice Deegan, secretary-treasurer, Cindy Wakefield-Campbell.

As always, we hope that more classmates will hold their reunions on Alumni Day, which is always the second Saturday in August.

The next regular meeting will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 9, in the Conference Room at Telstar at 6:30 p.m. Interested alumni are invited and urged to attend this and all monthly meetings.

Western Mountains Senior College

Seventeen members of Western Mountains Senior College took a trip to Deertrees Theater in Harrison Thursday where they enjoyed a production of "Mr. Cook's Garden" by a New York stage company. Participating in the outing were Al and Jackie Cressy, Ken and Gwyneth Bohr, Jackie van Luven, Carol Nielsen, Walt and Carol Hatch, Steve and Peggy Wight, Larry and Marlene Engdahl, Ruth Wight, George and Ginny Gamble, Cathy Kunkle and Marna McGinnis.

The next offering of the Senior College will be a Fern Walk with Jackie Cressy on Thursday afternoon, Aug. 14.

JASON HURD NAMED TOP GOLF INSTRUCTOR

In the September issue of Golf Digest, Jason Hurd, golf director at The Bethel Inn and Country Club in Bethel will be named "2003 Golf Digest's Top Instructor in Maine."

Hurd grew up in Plymouth, N.H. and has been playing golf for 14 years. He graduated from Plymouth Regional High School in 1993. At the age of 19, he was the youngest and low qualifier at the PGA Player ability test and then graduated from The Golf Academy of the South in Orlando, Fla. in 1996, where he received the Conrad Rehling achievement award that is given to the graduating student who exemplifies a strong work ethic and game improvement.

Hurd has worked at The Bethel Inn and Country Club for the past 12 years. He has been the head golf professional at the inn for the past five years and became a PGA member in 1999. In 2001, he took over the reins as director of instructors for the Guaranteed Performance School of Golf at the inn. The Guaranteed Performance School of Golf is a complete golf school program that has graduated more than 4,300 students since 1992, making it the most popular program in the state of Maine.

"This is quite an honor to be featured in Golf Digest Magazine," said Hurd. "To know that your fellow peers and past students think that much of my ability is a great feeling." Hurd and his accomplishments will be featured in the September issue of Golf Digest, which will hit newsstands Aug. 15.

The schedule of regular fall courses will be available soon. For information on the Senior College contact Jan Todd (824-3209) or Priscella Walker (824-4284).

White Mountain National Forest

The United States Forest Service Summer of Discovery programs for the week of Aug. 17 will be held at Dolly Copp Visitors Center in Dolly Copp Campground on Route 16 in Gorham, N.H., sponsored by the White Mountain Interpretive Program. The programs are free and open to the public.

Thursday, Aug. 21, "Games of Long Ago" will be the featured program. Jenny Young from the USFS will present a program featuring games children played years ago.

Saturday, Aug. 24, Terri Lindercamp of the USFS will perform a reenactment of Dolly Copp in "An Evening With Dolly Copp."

From the

Western Mountains Alliance

If you are working on a project to improve the quality of life in your community, be it in Oxford, Franklin, Somerset, or Piscataquis county, you may want to contact the Western Mountains Alliance to learn more about a training program that it is offering beginning November 2003.

" We call it 'Lead Western Maine,' and it is designed to build the capacity of the region's leaders and their grassroot organizations," says Deb Burd, executive director of the Alliance. " Groups currently engaged in a community development project – working to improve everything from the environment and education, to the health and general well-being of their community — enroll as "teams" (two or more people) and receive support, training, and mentoring for their projects over a period of six months."

The deadline for applications is Oct. 10. Call Deb Burd at 778-7274 for an application. For information on cost, scholarships and what graduates have to say about the program, log onto www.westernmountainsalliance.org.

Established in 1988, the Western Mountains Alliance strives to improve the quality of life and to strengthen the regional identity of the western mountains regions of Maine.

The Rape Education And Crisis Hotline is a nonprofit sexual assault crisis center serving all of Oxford County and the towns of Harrison and Bridgton. R.E.A.C.H. provides a 24-hour hotline for male and female survivors and their loved ones. Hotline shifts are covered by trained volunteer advocates who provide support and/or accompaniment to victims of recent or past assaults. R.E.A.C.H. also provides educational services and trainings for schools, communities, groups or organizations. R.E.A.C.H. also works to unify our services with those of law enforcement and health care. Overall, R.E.A.C.H.'s goal is to increase awareness of sexual violence and decrease the lasting effects of this crime on individuals and communities. Fundraising events greatly increase R.E.A.C.H.'s ability to continue providing these services free of charge.

From the

Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

Despite threatening skies during the three-day Sudbury Canada Days, the rain held off during the time for events. The summer heritage festival of the Bethel Historical Society celebrates Bethel's earlier name while providing a full range of activities reminiscent of the past.

As usual, the weekend began on Friday with the 12th annual Hall Memorial Lecture featuring a discussion of the life and career of Ellsworth's George Washington Madox (1821- 1882), who began his political life as a "Know-Nothing" activist and evolved into a supporter of Victoria Woodhull, the first woman to run for President of the United States and a member of the Communist party. The lecture was presented by Allan R. Whitmore, Ph.D., chairman of the history department at the University of Southern Maine.

On Saturday, horseshoe pitching began in the morning with Steve Estes of Waterford coming in first, Rawn Hill of South Paris, second, and Ben Hamlin, Waterford, third. Members of Company B, 20th Maine Volunteer Infantry provided visitors with reminders of the Civil War past. Ice cream was served Saturday and Sunday from the 1922 Mt. Zircon Bottle Lunch Stand. Among the craft demonstrators were those demonstrating and exhibiting quilting, chair caning, basket making, and dyeing. A flower show was held in the Robinson House. Those providing bouquets were Bessie Bennett, Sylvia Clanton, Amy Davis, Wende Gray, Susan Herlihy, Harry and Barbara Kuzyk, Helen Morton, Danna Nickerson, Carol Nielsen, Jackie Van Leuven, and Jane Vogt.

Historical videos were shown throughout the weekend.

A local art show was held on the lawn of the Robinson House.

Winners of the Children's Parade (theme "Famous Americans") were: cleverest, Elissa Dyer as "Calamity Jane"; most authentic, Jordan Kulig as "Annie Oakley"; prettiest, Anna Heberman, also as "Annie Oakely"; most original, Catherine Heberman, as Sacagewea.

Old-time children's games were played throughout Saturday afternoon. Winners included: sack race: Ben Eysenbach, Belmont, Mass., first; Lindsay Eysenback, Belmont, Mass., second; Jordan Kulig, Upton, third; Grace Eysenback, Belmont, Mass., fourth; potato race: first, Lindsay Eysenbach and Ben Eysenbach; second, Elissa Dyer, Upton, and Jordan Kulig; suitcase race: first, Anna Haberman, Bethel, Linsay Eysenbach, Ben Eysenbach, Sara Gustus, Andover; second, Cathryn Haberman, Andover, Jordan Kulig, Grace Eysenbach, Samantha Mallory, Bethel; scavenger hunt: first, Lindsay Eysenbach, second, Ben Eysenbach, third, Jordan Kulig; ice cream eating contest: first, Ben Eysenbach, second, Victoria Klimkowski, third, Jordan Kulig. Croquet winners: Zachary Kolda, first, and second was a tie for William Rein and Robert Rein. The door prize winner was Sabrina DuBois De Flippis of Gaithersburg, Md.

The farming/logging exhibit in the Hastings barn was well attended both days.

The log driver's bean supper on Saturday night was nearly sold out and was followed by a visit from Vice President Hannibal Hamlin and wife Ellen. Hamlin described his service in the Civil War, his career in politics as a Maine governor and senator, and his strong opposition to slavery.

Two final events on Sunday afternoon were the open house at the Lower Sunday River Schoolhouse (1895) and the old-time hymn sing at the Middle Intervale Meeting House (1816), the town's oldest surviving religious structure.

Sudbury Canada was Bethel's early name from the time it was granted by the Massachusetts General Court in 1768 until it was incorporated in 1796. The earlier name honored the original grantees from Sudbury, Mass., who had fought unsuccessfully to conquer Canada in 1690. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts rewarded these men with land in the "District of Maine," naming it in honor of the Massachusetts town and the campaign in which they served. This annual festival honors the town's rich historical tradition dating from the 18th century.

More than a thousand members strong, the Bethel Historical Society, founded in 1966, is western Maine's largest and most comprehensive full-time historical agency, dedicated to collecting, preserving, and interpreting the regional past for present and future generations. For over thirty-five years, the society's activities have included lectures, exhibits, special events, heritage festivals, workshops, conferences, school and educational programs, and publications. Since 1974, the society has operated from its Broad Street headquarters, the Dr. Moses Mason House, a period house museum and research library. In 1999, it opened the O'Neil Robinson House (next door) to the public for an expanded exhibit program, museum shop space, and administrative offices.

Obituaries

LUCIA (MAYBERRY) VERRILL

Lucia Alberta (Mayberry) Verrill, 98, of Bryant Pond, died Aug. 9, 2003 at Norway.

She was born in Oxford on Aug. 29, 1905 the daughter of William L. and Daisy (Robinson) Mayberry, grew up on Pigeon Hill and was educated in local schools. She moved to Rhode Island in 1923, and worked as a practical nurse there and in Maine into her 80s. She returned to Maine in 1956.

She was a former member of the Cooperative Extension and the Grange and was a member of the Seventh Day Advent Church. She was to have received the Boston Cane this year.

She is survived by one daughter, Ernestine Riley and her husband, William, of Bryant Pond; four grandchildren, Kathleen Berberian of Bryant Pond, Candace Sumrall of Texas, Crystal Brennan of James Town, R.I., and Kelli Healy of Middletown, R.I.; five great-grandchildren, Christopher and Madison of Middletown, R.I., Sarah of Woodstock, Nicole of Florida and Ian of Texas; five great-great-grandchildren, Zachary, Alexa and Natalie all of Bryant Pond; Amara of Florida and Scott of Texas. She was predeceased by her husband, Ralph Eugene Verrill in 1967; and three brothers, William, Kenneth and Milton.

Graveside services were held at the Lakeside Cemetery, Bryant Pond, on Tuesday, Aug. 12, with the Rev. Richard Wright officiating. The family requests in lieu of flowers, memorials be sent to the Woodstock Library or to the Forest Dale School, 27 Perkins Valley Road, Bryant Pond, ME 04219.

REYNOLD E. JORDAN SR.

Reynold Elwood Jordan, Sr., of Waterford, son of Orlando E. and Gladys (Dunham) Jordan in Locke Mills, and born in Greenwood on July 19, 1931, died Aug. 12, 2003 after being diagnosed in April with metastatic prostate cancer.

A graduate of Gould Academy, he was state champion in the sprint in 1949. A High Speed Radio operator graduate of the Southeastern Signal School at Camp Gordon, Ga., he was assigned to the Berlin Wall attached to the English Army. Among his medals were the Army of Occupation and the National Defense Service Medal. He was given a Field Promotion to Sgt. prior to his honorable discharge in February 1954.

On Aug. 7, 1954, he married Phyllis Hathaway in Bryant Pond. In May of 2003 he earned his Ham Amateur Radio License "KA1FTT."

Mr. Jordan was an Accounting graduate of Westbrook College whose career included treasurer of the North Waterford Spool Mill, controller of Thomas P. Beals Furniture, comptroller of Ekco Wood Products and American Homes. He formed his own accounting business, the Jordan Result, in 1922 and was still active with it. He also continued to be employed at the Adult Education at SAD17.

Over the years, he had been a regular blood donor. He held membership at the Waterford Congregational Church and associate membership of the Jackson-Silver Post American Legion in Locke Mills, Franklin Grange 124 in Bryant Pond, was past noble grand of the Norway Lodge, IOOF and Mt. Hope Rebekahs in Norway where he served in a number of capacities, including supporter while Phyllis was noble grand. He also volunteered at the Community Lunch in Norway. He participated in the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program. He was a handicap ski instructor at Sunday River. He enjoyed golfing, fishing and woodworking.

Survivors include his wife, four children: Reynold E. Jr. and his wife Margaret of North Yarmouth, Vance E. of Waterford, Delia and husband E. Jerry Gardner, of Catlin, N.Y. and Douglas M. and his wife Janet of Stratham N.H.; grandchildren: Nicole Alice Jordan of Old Town, Adria Edith Jordan of North Yarmouth, Ashley Kay Jordan of Stratham, N.H. and Eric Michael Jordan of Stratham N.H. Stepgranddaughters, Krisanne and Katie, and step great-grandchildren, Marissa, Nicholas, Abigail, and Noah; siblings, Mrs. Elwin Brown Jr. (Bernice), O. Richard and wife Nathalie, Mrs. Raymond Buck (Beatrice), Arnold and wife Pearl; nieces and nephews; aunts, Bertha Flanders and Vera Cross.

In lieu of flowers, please send donations to the Franklin Grange 124, Bryant Pond c/o Laura Hutchins, Box 573 East Andover, ME 04226 or the charity of one's choice.

Family and friends may visit 4 to 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 15 at the Jordan Home, 12 Winding Trail, Waterford. A memorial service will be at the North Waterford Congregational Church, Kezar Road, Saturday, Aug. 16 at 2 p.m. Condolences may be expressed at www/funeralalternatives.net.

Card of Thanks

I would like to thank my family and all of my friends for the kind words, visits and cards during my stay at Stephens Memorial and since my return home.

Rumford Point Church celebrates 200th birthday

The Rumford Point Church, corner Routes 2 and 232, is celebrating its 200th birthday this year. In honor of this memorable occasion, its members are hosting a birthday party for the community and friends of the church. Cake and ice cream will be served in the fellowship hall on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 17 at 3 p.m. A short history of the church will be given and old pictures and other memorabilia will be on display. All are welcome.

Just prior to the celebration, the church is holding a vacation Bible school. It will be held on Aug. 14 to 16 from 9 a.m. to noon for children ages K through six, older children and adults are also welcome to attend. A cookout will be held at noon on Saturday, Aug. 16, for children participating and their families.

On Thursday, Aug. 21, a baked ham supper will be held at the church. The menu will consist of baked ham, mashed potato, vegetables, coleslaw, rolls, coffee and homemade pies. Supper will be served from 5 to 6:30 p.m. The cost is $7 for adults and $3 for children 10 and under.

NEW PASTOR AT BETHEL METHODIST

Bethel Methodist Church has announced the appointment of Geoffrey Gross as its part-time pastor. He comes to the Bethel church from Calvary United Methodist Church in Lewiston where he has been a lifelong member. He has a bachelor's degree in Social and Behavioral Sciences from the University of Southern Maine. He is also certified by the State of Maine as a licensed social worker. He currently works full time for the State of Maine Department of Behavioral and Developmental Services as a resource coordinator for Mental Retardation Services.

He has been active in the United Methodist Church, serving locally as the lay leader for Calvary, chair of its mission committee and administrative counsel, and member of P.P.R. and spiritual life. He has also been active on the conference level, attending the New England Annual Conference and serving on the Southern Maine District Committee on Superintendency. He has led worship at Calvary a number of times.

He currently lives in Auburn and is the proud uncle of two boys, Danny and Scott Sleeper, who live in Turner with their mother, Yvette. His parents reside in Norristown, Pa. His father, Richard, is regional sales manager for Cokesbury Bookstores, and his mother, Yvonne, is a retired school teacher.
